Here is what you can do with that overly large almost 7 hour break* in the middle of the day.

So is it “time management” or wasted time?

Floating your contract means you lose out on extra per lesson earnings.

*if you get a schedule of 8:30 am to 11:25 am and 6:15pm to 9:10pm which is what many teachers get when they apply for a job, You MIGHT get extra day time lessons if your boss doesn't try to shift your cheaper contract units (1540yen) to cover the lessons they would have to pay 1900 per lesson rate. What could you do with that extra 460 yen per lesson?
